About us

I'm Phil Griffin, the founder of Interview Mentor—a specialised interview skills and candidate support business based in the south of England. With a successful career spanning sales, marketing, and senior management, I've gained extensive experience from both sides of the interview table—as a candidate and as a recruiter.

Recognising the common struggle faced by candidates and recruiters in interview situations, we are committed to bridging this gap.

For candidates, this involves equipping them with the tools they need to present themselves effectively, stand out from others, and secure good job offers. We then guide them as they make informed decisions about accepting roles in business, where they can thrive, advance their careers, and receive fair rewards while feeling valued.

“ Phil has been invaluable to me! Not just to help boost my interview confidence, but to give me key skills that I can take forward with me. He is incredibly positive and encouraging and gave me an in depth understanding of the interview process, questions, answers and what is being looked for. I was offered the first job that I applied for, thank you Phil!”
